The CRUX Asia ex-Japan Fund underperformed the MSCI Asia ex-Japan index this month. The main positive contributors to fund performance were Consumer Discretionary, Materials, and Healthcare sectors. Chinese on-demand non-food delivery company Dada Nexus, Chinese quick service restaurant operator Jiumaojiu, and Taiwanese ABF substrate manufacturer Unimicron were our top contributors. The main negative contributors came from our underweight positioning in the Financials, Information Technology, and Real Estate sectors. Chinese chemical logistics operator Milkyway, renewable energy equipment manufacturer Sungrow Power, and Indonesian yogurt drink manufacturer Cisarua Mountain Dairy were the main detractors. Our underweight position in semiconductor manufacturer TSMC, as well as the large internet benchmark names Tencent and Alibaba also hurt performance this month. Over the month, we reduced our exposure to the Energy and Communication sectors, and selectively increased our weighting in software and hardware technology names.
