The CRUX China Fund slightly underperformed the MSCI China All Shares index this month, in what was another tough period for the Chinese stock market, driven by ongoing concerns in the property sector (where we have zero exposure), the lack of strength in the anticipated consumer recovery and geo-political volatility. We remain positive though on the consumer outlook, AI and EV themes, and believe geo-political concerns are in the price, while the private sector is keen to mend and build relations between the West and China.
